Hindu Perspective on Success and Failure

A talk by Anuradha Dooney of the Oxford Centre for Hindu Studies

In our world we see success on the Xfactor and on talent shows, we see success in industry, in banking, in sport, and in schools. But how do we measure success? Who has defined success for us? Is it to do with social acceptance? national agreement? moral standards? wealth generation, or fame? In this talk we dip into ancient texts to see if we can find different measures of success and failure to reflect on, to inspire thoughtful discussion, and even to challenge or norms.
